

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

There's no easy way to save $1. and 75c have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep a house without it. It's simple and easy, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly turn it into a permanent cure in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Other ways it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight throat, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, colds, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The next time you buy calomel ask for alotabs

The purified calomel tablets that are entirely free of all sickening and salivating effects.

Medicinal virtues vastly improved. Guaranteed by your druggist. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

Will bring you renewed strength and vigor, infuse new life and new energy into your flagging, drooping body whether exhausted from excessive nervous strain, undue physical exertion or sickness.

Lyko
The Great General Tonic
ASK YOUR DRUGGIST

GUARD AGAINST INFLUENZA

Don't let the dread influenza get you. You have even the slightest touch of cold, better begin using Fox's Honey and Tar at once. Henry Willis, Sandy Point, Texas, is one of many thousands who consider this "just what" he says: "I suffered severely with a bad cough; after using four or five dollars' worth of different medicines decided to try Fox's Honey and Tar. One bottle gave relief. Best medicine I ever used." Contains no opiates. J. Anderson, druggist, Chattanooga, Tenn. (Adv.)

The Spanish "Flu" MAY GET YOU!

Call us for the best Accident and Health Policy ever written.

Glover & Grady
(Incorporated)
MAIN 489

LAGRIPPE, FLU TAKE GASTRONE!

For Lagrippe. Keeps the stomach and bowels clean, works like magic for indigestion. Try it and you will be satisfied. Sold by all first-class druggists. Fritts & Wehl Co., Distributors.

How Would You Like to Feel as Frisky as a KITTEN?

D. & R. SYSTEM—Tonic containing iron and combined with other valuable medicines. It's a Tonic for Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Constipation, Indigestion, Headaches, Dizziness, Chills and Fever.

It's different. Try it. At your druggist. 50 cents.

KING AND PRESIDENT AGREED ON ESSENTIALS

SELF-GOVERNMENT BASED ON EQUAL LAWS.

Similarity of Speeches Tend to Impress Advocates of Democratic Ideals.

(By John D. Erwin)

Washington, Dec. 31.—(Special)—The similarity of the speeches of President Wilson and King George in essential and fundamental features tends to impress advocates of democratic ideals in a most pleasing way that the people of Great Britain and the people of the United States are not at all aware of. The two leaders, in their respective countries, are speaking for their respective countries and responsive to the aspirations and hopes of their respective peoples, assuming identical attitudes on basic principles.

Both are for the principle of self-determination for all peoples. Both are for freedom and peace. Both spoke as representatives of democracies who are responsible to their people and amenable to their wishes.

Spirit of Great Nations. President Wilson, in his speech replying to the king's address, said: "For you and I, sir, temporarily embody the spirit of two great nations, and whatever strength I have as a speaker, I possess it only so long and so far as I express the spirit and purpose of the American people."

"Every influence that the American people have over the affairs of the world is measured by their sympathy with aspirations of free men everywhere."

"America does love freedom, and I believe that she loves freedom unselfishly."

In his speech at the state banquet to President Wilson at Buckingham palace, King George said: "You share with us the traditions of self-government as old as the Magna Charta."

"We recognize the bond of still deeper significance in the common ideals which our people cherish. First among those ideals you value and we value, democracy and peace. Privileged as we have been to be the exponents and examples in national life of the principles of popular self-government based upon equal laws, it now falls to both of us alike to see how the principles can be applied to our own borders for the good of the world."

"You have now come to help in building up new states amid the ruins of those that the war has shattered and in laying the solid foundations of a new world. We may stand firm because it will rest upon the consent of the emancipated nationalities."

Free American Nations. Champions of free American institutions who cherish the ideals of world-wide democracy and the brotherhood of nations see in the common views expressed by President Wilson and King George the coming of a better and brighter day for all the peoples of the earth, for it seems that when agreement has been reached by the heads of two of the greatest and most powerful governments in the world, each speaking accurately and advisedly for his people, there must be in store for all nations an equitable and permanent settlement of differences between nations.

It is not a partisan view that President Wilson is winning new honors in his efforts to harmonize whatever conflicting opinions there may be among the numerous representatives of the governments of the world, who have been in conference with him, for men of all parties here express gratification over the significant fact.

Harmony of Sentiment. While the harmony of sentiment and principle as expressed by King George and President Wilson was pleasing and satisfying to official Washington, giving strength to the hope that the world problems are being brought to an equitable solution, the declarations of Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson on the vital and specific points in the forthcoming peace agreement have had the effect of allaying much of the fear that the final result might be to the disadvantage of America.

The two most conspicuous characters in the world-war who are recognized as the greatest and closest of the French that short, slender, dark man and the president of Great Britain and the president of the United States, have each expressed gratification over the fact that England and America are agreed on the general principles of the question of peace. It is considered that the peace congress.

This harmony of sentiment emanating from their combined judgments is not only reassuring and strengthening to those who have followed him in his plans for universal and permanent peace, but it has in a measure disarmed the critics, those in high stations who have seen or aspired to the presidency.

Hope and Cheer. The words of cheer and hope embodied in the expressions of Lloyd George and Woodrow Wilson aroused enthusiasm among those thoughtful men of affairs at the national capital who have anxiously awaited the outcome of the president's trip to Europe, and now it is obvious that America and England have the same aspirations and the same ideals, having a common purpose in view.

President Wilson, on the tentative agreement between England and America, said:

"I am particularly happy that the ground has been cleared and the foundations laid because we have already agreed on the same basic principles. Those principles are clearly and definitely enough stated to make their application a matter which should afford no fundamental difficulty."

The peoples of the world want peace and want it now, not merely by the conquest of arms but by agreement of mind.

Supports President. Supporting President Wilson's view Premier Lloyd George said:

"I feel assured that all these powers are in accord on the basic principles of peace which will come before the conference. At any rate it will be certain that America and England will be found working in complete harmony in the conference."

Lloyd George speaks for the people of England and the government of Great Britain, as Woodrow Wilson speaks for the people of America and the government of the United States, and their declarations on a general agreement are viewed here as the most important and the most reassuring and the most satisfying incident of the whole demonstration abroad. With England and America agreed on the basic principles, it is believed that a made clear for the future and equitable solution of the multiplicity of problems coming out of the war and for a stable and permanent agreement for perpetual peace. This is a signal victory in the struggle for a league of nations.

WHEAT STOCKS DOUBLE

Twice as Much on Hand as Year Ago. Washington, Dec. 31.—The commercial stocks of wheat reported in a survey made by the department of agriculture for Dec. 31, 1918, amounted to 219,424,832 bushels. These holdings, by 10,669 firms, elevators, warehouses, grain mills and wholesale dealers, are more than twice as large as the stocks held by the same firms a year earlier, the actual percentage being 206.1 per cent. of the 1917 stocks. The figures refer to stocks actually reported and do not represent the commercial stocks of the country, nor do they include stocks on farms.

Visible Supply Figures Compared. The commercial visible supply figures as published by the Chicago board of trade for the nearest date (Nov. 30, 1918), show 121,561,000 bushels of wheat as against 21,021,000 bushels a year ago. Corresponding Bradstreet figures for 1918 show 131,581,000 bushels as against 25,633,000 bushels for 1917. As boys of the same date of the year, these figures, as well as those obtained by the more extensive survey, show a very great relative increase in the commercial stocks of wheat on Dec. 31, 1918.

TOTAL LOSSES OF WAR

Figures Show Entente Casualties in Killed and Wounded. London, Dec. 31.—The British, Russian, Italian, French, American, Greek and Austrian armies lost 6,296,504 in killed and over 16,238,270 in wounded during the war, according to a table compiled by the Evening News. The table omits the French wounded.

Italy's Losses in Detail. Rome, Dec. 31.—Italy's losses in killed and wounded in the war totaled 1,406,990, according to an announcement by the Italian government. It follows: Killed: Officers, 16,862; men, 442,638. Wounded: Officers, 33,347; men, 912,643.

GAVE AWAY SECRETS

Three Telegraph Officials Arrested for Giving Germans Copies of Entente Telegrams. Amsterdam, Dec. 31.—Three telegraph officials were arrested here today, charged with giving the German legation at The Hague copies of telegrams sent and received by the entente legations. This had been going on since September, it was said.

67 HOUSES IN 97 DAYS

Record Made in Shipbuilders' Homes at Bath, Me. Bath, Me.—(I. N. S.)—In exactly ninety-seven days shipbuilders' homes, providing for 116 families of men employed in building ships for the emergency fleet corporation were erected here.

There was used in building these homes 3,000,000 bricks, which, if placed end on end, would stretch a distance of 30 miles. The homes cost, 200 barrels of plain lime and 158 tons of hydrated lime.

FRENCH LIKE JAZZ

That and Slapstick Comedies Tickle Sensibilities. San Francisco, Cal.—(I. N. S.)—That American jazz and slapstick tickle the ears of the French that short, slender, dark man and the president of Great Britain and the president of the United States, have each expressed gratification over the fact that England and America are agreed on the general principles of the question of peace. It is considered that the peace congress.

This harmony of sentiment emanating from their combined judgments is not only reassuring and strengthening to those who have followed him in his plans for universal and permanent peace, but it has in a measure disarmed the critics, those in high stations who have seen or aspired to the presidency.

Hope and Cheer. The words of cheer and hope embodied in the expressions of Lloyd George and Woodrow Wilson aroused enthusiasm among those thoughtful men of affairs at the national capital who have anxiously awaited the outcome of the president's trip to Europe, and now it is obvious that America and England have the same aspirations and the same ideals, having a common purpose in view.

President Wilson, on the tentative agreement between England and America, said:

"I am particularly happy that the ground has been cleared and the foundations laid because we have already agreed on the same basic principles. Those principles are clearly and definitely enough stated to make their application a matter which should afford no fundamental difficulty."

The peoples of the world want peace and want it now, not merely by the conquest of arms but by agreement of mind.

Supporting President Wilson's view Premier Lloyd George said:

"I feel assured that all these powers are in accord on the basic principles of peace which will come before the conference. At any rate it will be certain that America and England will be found working in complete harmony in the conference."

Lloyd George speaks for the people of England and the government of Great Britain, as Woodrow Wilson speaks for the people of America and the government of the United States, and their declarations on a general agreement are viewed here as the most important and the most reassuring and the most satisfying incident of the whole demonstration abroad. With England and America agreed on the basic principles, it is believed that a made clear for the future and equitable solution of the multiplicity of problems coming out of the war and for a stable and permanent agreement for perpetual peace. This is a signal victory in the struggle for a league of nations.

Spirit of Great Nations. President Wilson, in his speech replying to the king's address, said: "For you and I, sir, temporarily embody the spirit of two great nations, and whatever strength I have as a speaker, I possess it only so long and so far as I express the spirit and purpose of the American people."

"Every influence that the American people have over the affairs of the world is measured by their sympathy with aspirations of free men everywhere."

"America does love freedom, and I believe that she loves freedom unselfishly."

THE MAN WITH THE CLUB FOOT

By VALENTINE WILLIAMS.

SYNOPSIS.

The story told by Desmond O'Connell opens at the door of a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a small, dark, and cluttered room at Rotterdam. He made this in answer to a call, apparently most urgent, from a man who came from Van Druetta, a former business friend living in Holland. The door was ajar, and he saw a man in a dark suit and a woman in a light dress standing in the doorway. The man was looking at his watch and the woman was looking at him. Desmond O'Connell, who was a man of about thirty, with a high forehead and a